You have the right to make a complaint against a police officer for any improper police conduct. California law requires this agency to have a procedure to investigate citizens' complaints. You have the right to a written description of this procedure. This agency may find, after an investigation, that there may or may not be enough evidence to warrant action on your complaint. You have the right to know the disposition of your complaint. Misconduct complaints and any reports or findings relating to those complaints must be retained by this agency for at least five years. If the complaint is substantiated for criminal activity, the employee may be subject to criminal proceeding
